

Scotland

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

Members of the Church of England are reminded that in Scotland the Established Church, called "The Church of Scotland" is Presbyterian, and therefore is not in communion with our Church. Unlike England, any building North of the Border called the "Parish Church," or Kirke, is not Anglican but Presbyterian, although it may well be dedicated in honour of a Saint. Although there are one or two cases, indicated below, where through the kindness of the Kirke Session we are allowed to use its building for an occasional Anglican service, our visitors and residents must ask for the "EPISCOPAL CHURCH." It can easily be identified from the road by a sign depicting the Arms of the Seven Dioceses. In some parts of Scotland our churches are, unfortunately, infrequent, or only open in the summer season. To save space, yet at the same time to help Anglican travellers in Scotland, every town or village having an Episcopal Church is mentioned in the following list, but in places having several churches, only those providing one or more of the "Four Categories" are named. Full details, times of services, etc., will be found in the Scottish Episcopal Church Year Book and Directory, called "The Red Book" for short, published annually, and obtainable from the Secretary, R.C.C., 21 Grosvenor Crescent, Edinburgh EH12 5EE, at present £1 post free. P.E.B.G.

COMMENDATION by the Right Revd. G. M. Sessford, Bishop of Moray, Ross and Caithness.

Dear Father,

May I say how much your Directory is appreciated, and how greatly it helps us in the far North? Warm wishes.

Yours very sincerely,

A. GEORGE MORAY.

Bishop's House,
43 Fairfield Road,

Additional Curates Society

ACS maintains a continuous chain of prayer for more vocations to the priesthood, and makes grants to enable assistant curates to be employed where they are most needed, especially in the new housing areas. In 1973 ACS has promised £67,500 towards the salaries of 600 assistant curates. They are given in every Diocese to parishes of every type of Churchmanship
